"Captain Jarvis," added the delegate, "was the confidential agent of Morgan, in charge of the syndicate's interests in Seattle. He committed suicide immediately following the introduction of this resolution you are now considering. He knew that this resolution would bring out the facts."

Declines to Talk.

The Attorney General has seen tonight declined to discuss the action of the committee. His friends intimated that the charges were old, and that a certain phase of them still was under investigation. They declined to indicate just what this phase was.

OLD MASTER FOUND IN ORPHANS' HOME

Reston, July 14.—In the humble little chapel of St. Vincent's Orphan Home, Camden Street, there has just been discovered on the gospel side of the altar what is said to be an old master. It is a portrait of a man, and the painting is worth many thousands of dollars.

A canvasser from the Society of Fine Arts, New York, has just made an offer of several thousands of dollars for the painting. The artist, however, has refused to sell it for a money offer, promising a duplicate of the original.

The painting is named "The Assumption of the Blessed Virgin into Heaven." Even if the work of art is worth thousands of dollars, it can never be sold, for by the authorities of the home as long as there is anything else to be sold.

"This painting," said one of the authorities, "is a very old one. I do not know. Many years ago—I believe it is more than fifty—there was in this city a Spanish consul representative of his country to this port. He was a devout Catholic, and spent much of his spare time at the home here."

"One day, nearly half a century ago, he was suddenly ordered home. Before leaving he came here and left the painting with the authorities. It was understood that he would reappear if it was returned."

Owner Never Returned.

"But he never came back," said the Spanish Consul. "Before he passed away, however, he willed the painting. But he laid down the condition that it was never to be sold. There was anything else saleable in the home."

"We always believed, from what the early records of the home show and from what has been handed down through the years, that the painting was an original. But our belief was confirmed a few days ago by Sister Mary Ann, who was in charge of the home."

Standing five by three feet, the Virgin is shown ascending into heaven, clad in flowing robes of purple and white. About her, rolling on fleecy clouds, are cherubim.

Remarkable Christmas Present

Among the curious Christmas presents of this year will be one for a man of national reputation, which has been sent him by the makers.

Way last January the present was decided upon, and a friend of the prominent gentleman represented by the Burrelle Press Clipping Bureau, of New York, to watch every paper in America and to take up every item which appeared concerning the man.

The clipping bureau people followed instructions, and now present the history of one year in the life of this exceptional man.

The history ends just after election, and the 26,642 newspaper items found everything from a three-line editorial mention to full-page illustrated stories. These have been mounted on 3,300 great sheets of Irish linen paper and bound into three massive volumes.

At the head of each item is the name and date of paper clipped from, this information having been put in with a book typewriter. The words thus inserted amount to 133,252.

In actual time, a very strict record of which has been kept, the work has required six or seven working days throughout the year, and has kept in employment during that time thirty people, as readers, clippers, sorters, mounters and binders. Every newspaper of importance is represented.

This is merely a specimen of some of the unique orders which get into the Burrelle Bureau, for the extent to which clippings are used by individuals and by business concerns seems to be remarkable.

There are many people in private as well as in public life who need press clippings and don't know it. It might be well for them to look up this man Burrelle, who is said to be so well known that a letter simply addressed "Burrelle, New York" will reach him with no delay.

SNAG IS STRUCK BY GOVERNMENT

New York, July 14.—The government struck another snag in its three-year-old attempt to fix the responsibility for the so-called "sleeper trunk" smuggling conspiracy, when William C. Dreier, secretary of a multi-party concern, refused to testify before the grand jury regarding certain entries on the books of his firm.

The district attorney did not deny this, but met Mr. Smith's declaration of pardon could be given before an offense had been proved, with the statement that the President had power to grant a pardon upon evidence that a crime had been committed even before conviction.

The government alleges that it has been defrauded out of $5,000,000 in duties on goods and lingerie by the alleged conspirators. Since proceedings were begun a score of dressmakers have been indicted and fined. Recently an offer of $250,000 was made through a prominent attorney to Collector Loeb by way of settlement if the inquiry should be dropped.

Gunboat Goes to Haiti by Request of Consul

Revolutionary Movement Is Threatening to American Interests

There.

Washington, July 14.—Because of the serious revolutionary movement in Northern Haiti, which is jeopardizing American interests, the United States gunboat Petrel was today ordered from Guantanamo, Cuba, to Cape Haitien.

This action was taken in response to a request from Consul Livingston at Cape Haitien. That port and Port Liberté are threatened with attack by revolutionists, he said, and many American interests are consequently exposed to danger.

Quick Trip Prohibited.

The Petrel will leave Guantanamo today or tomorrow. The voyage to Haitian waters will consume less than a day. The gunboat will lend its protection to American ships and their property and keep this government in close touch with developments in the situation.

Consul Livingston's report was the first word received by the State Department that the revolutionary situation had assumed sufficient magnitude to endanger foreign interests.

In addition to this internal dissension Haiti has some international problems on her hands. The United States, France, England, Germany and Italy recently presented a joint note to the little republic requesting that the claims of their citizens be settled by diplomacy within three months, or in the event of the failure of that procedure, that they be submitted to the arbitration of a claims commission. The State Department has not yet received a reply to that note.

Trouble With Santo Domingo.

Supplementing this situation, Haiti is endeavoring to perfect an agreement with Santo Domingo to arbitrate the long-standing boundary dispute between the two countries. The effort is being made through the friendly offices of the United States, but so far no conclusion has been reached, the point in controversy being the tribunal of arbitration.

AGED 111, SPRY AS A MAN OF 60

New York, July 14.—Joseph Fry, said to be one of the oldest men in the world, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. J. Hoffman, at 1916 Glenwood Road, Flatbush. He professes to be 111 years old, and when interviewed yesterday he was as alert and mentally bright as a man of sixty. His memory is considered remarkable.

"I was born in Warsaw, Poland, in 1800," he said, "and came to New York when I was twenty-eight years old, and two years later married my first wife, Betty Moses. We went to Cincinnati, where we lived five years, and had two boys and five girls born to us. Later we went to Nashville, Tenn., where my wife died in 1868."

"I was naturalized in Nashville, married again, and my present wife is living at our home in Roanoke, Va. Five sons and six daughters were born to us. I now have seven great-grandchildren and forty-two grandchildren, and I feel as well as ever, though I am a little weak in my legs."

"You see, I am not yet bald, and I am comfortably fixed in life, with my children happy and doing well. I have lived to see four generations of my descendants, so I, too, ought to be happy."

For many years Mr. Fry lived in Hopkinsville, Ky., and followed his business of tailoring with success. He says he was a charter member of the Knights of Pythias and the oldest living member known. He has the appearance of a veritable patriarch, with white hair and a full beard, which is not entirely gray. In the course of a fortnight he expects to return to his home in Roanoke.

CASH AND CHECKS FOUND IN WRECK

Bridgeport, Conn., July 14.—While clearing away the debris of the Federal express wreck, searchers discovered a package containing two drafts for $100 each, two purses, each containing $100 of new currency, a gold watch, spectacles and other effects belonging to Mrs. Helena E. Walcott, wife of Dr. Charles D. Walcott, of the Smithsonian Institution, Washington.

These valuables were taken over by the claims department of the road and arrangements were made for their shipment to Washington.

Patrolman Otto Bonems, of Pawtucket, R. I., has made arrangements for the care of the body of Sylvester Bennett, the old soldier, whose body was the last found in the wreckage.

Through his visit, it was learned that the old soldier had planned a surprise for his daughter, Mrs. Bonems. He had saved pension money enough to pay for his passage from the Soldiers' Home to Pawtucket, and without word of his plans, boarded the Federal Express. That it was Bennett who was in the wreck was determined by a letter and bank book found on the body.

S. F. Moreley, of Barre, Vt., told a remarkable story at the morgue last evening when he claimed the body of his wife, Stella C. Moreley. He and his wife were visiting in Washington two weeks before she left. He returned home to the day before she left Washington. Both traveled on the Federal Express, and while he was sleeping he had a dream of a wreck in which both his wife and he perished.

Moreley said at the time he paid no heed to the dream, but that when he heard of the wreck of the Federal Express with terrible force, and he had a presentiment that his wife was among the killed.

It was announced at both the Bridgeport Hospital and St. Vincent Hospital to-day that none of the Washington victims who remain for treatment are in critical condition. All are out of danger.

Two inquiries to place the responsibility for the wreck are being held. The first was that of the three inspectors of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the second that of the coroner.

IDEA OF SUICIDE NOT ENTERTAINED

Concord, N. C., July 14.—A telegram received to-night from the father of Ensign R. S. Young, Jr., who is in New York to investigate his son's mysterious disappearance from the Brooklyn last Tuesday night, gives the family reason to believe that the young ensign is still alive. The message read: "Not found, but will be."

It was stated by a member of the family to-night that the idea of suicide was no longer entertained. They believe the young man will turn up shortly and explain his actions.

TWO VESSELS IN FATAL COLLISION

New York, July 15.—A dispatch from Port Limon, Costa Rica, reports that thirty-two passengers and several members of the crew of the steamer Irma were drowned or crushed to death when the vessel was sunk in a collision during a storm in the estuary of the San Juan River. The colliding steamer is given as the Diamante, and the news is said to have reached Port Limon from Bluefields.

Most of the passengers of the Irma were below when the collision occurred, because of the heavy weather, and to this fact, the dispatch says is due the heavy loss of life. The Diamante it is stated was damaged, but kept afloat.

GULLING WORTH, WAR VETERAN, DIES

Was Retired Tobacco Manufacturer and Well-Known Citizen of Richmond.

J. N. Cullingworth, aged seventy-two years, prominently known as a tobacco manufacturer, died at 10 o'clock last night at his home 1021 Grove Avenue. He had been a sufferer from heart trouble for thirteen years, but it was only recently that his condition became critical.

He was a native of Richmond, and was born on February 10, 1840. He was the son of William and Mary Whitlock Cullingworth, and was educated at the University of Virginia. After completing his academic course he entered the law department, and would have graduated in 1861, but gave up his career to answer the call to arms.

Mr. Cullingworth joined the Richmond Howitzer and served throughout the war. In 1861 he married Miss Cordelia Jones McMin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. McMin, of this city. An only child born to them died a number of years ago.

At the close of the war, having abandoned his law studies, he engaged in the manufacture of tobacco with his brother-in-law, Stephen A. Ellison, under the firm name of Cullingworth & Ellison. The firm continued in business until 1885, when Mr. Ellison died. Mr. Cullingworth continued the business under his own name, remaining at the head of the firm until January, 1910, when he was compelled to retire because of ill health.

Mr. Cullingworth never aspired to public office, nor was he a member of any fraternal or secret society. He was an elder in the First Presbyterian Church, and until stricken by ill health took an active part in the administration of its affairs. He was a talented speaker.

The arrangements for the funeral will be completed to-day.

OBITUARY

John Romer, seventy-nine years old, died early yesterday morning. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock from the First Lutheran Church. Interment will be made in Oakwood Cemetery.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Bowling Green, Va., July 14.—Captain Gibbons Allenworth, after an illness of several months, died at his home near Golanville yesterday, aged seventy-six years. He is survived by his widow, who before her marriage was a Miss Allen. He was a Confederate soldier and served throughout the war as captain of Company G, Third Virginia Cavalry Regiment. Funeral services will be conducted at County Line Baptist Church on Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, and interment will be in the church burying ground.

MISSING LETTERS NOT YET LOCATED

New York, July 14.—The missing letters from W. E. D. Stokes, the millionaire, to Lillian Graham, the show girl, were not in Miss Graham's possession on the night of June 7, when Stokes was shot, but had been placed for safe-keeping in the hands of Martin W. Littleton, Miss Graham's counsel, according to four detectives who testified today in their trial on charges resulting from the manner in which they investigated the case. Hence, they argued, the letters could not have been taken from the young woman's apartments when other evidence was removed to police headquarters.

POLE RAISERS ARE ROUTED

Illegitimate Residents in the Hole They Dug and Threatened to Shoot.

Islip, L. I., July 14.—Standing in a hole that had been dug in front of his home in Saxons Avenue, a fashionable residential section of this place, and brandishing a revolver in either hand, Eugene Lenthion forced back a dozen men who were about to erect a pole in the hole for the Islip Electric Light Company. Badly frightened, the men went away, and Lenthion filled the hole.

According to a contract, the company must have 150 street lights erected in Islip by Saturday. All the poles were put up yesterday except those in Saxons Avenue. When the men began digging in front of Lenthion's place he ordered them to stop, and they fled up the hole and departed. Later, however, they returned, redug the hole and refused to go. Then Lenthion got his revolvers and routed them.
